

Prof. Dr. David BECKER teaches Psychology (Social Psychology, Qualitative Methods, Master Program Cultural Relations and Migration) at the Sigmund Freud Private University in Berlin. He is a consultant for GIZ and other International organizations in reference to psychosocial projects in regions of war and crisis, during the last 10 years with a special emphasis in the Middle East (Gaza, West Bank, Lebanon, Jordan). He recently edited and co-authored the book „1:0 für Rafah – Chancen und Herausforderungen psychosozialer Arbeit in Palästina“ (1:0 for Rafah – Opportunities and Challenges of Psychosocial Work in Palestine) Gießen: Psychosozial Verlag 2016. He is currently co-directing the research project “What helps the helpers” mandated by GIZ, which focusses on issues of staff- and self-care in organizations working with Syrian refugees.